*Midwest Conference competition did not begin until 1931

Note: Starting in 1998, The Midwest Conference Championships went to a four-team format, with the top two teams in the North and the top two teams in the South playing in dual matches to determine the top four finishes in the Conference.

Note: In the early days of the conference, there was only one singles and one doubles champion. If one team won both singles and doubles championships, it won the team title. If one team won the singles title and another team won the doubles crown, they were declared co-champions. From 1953-1972, there were four singles and two doubles championships played. Beginning in 1973, they began playing six singles and three doubles brackets.

NCAA Championships appearances

- 1993 – Tobin Laursen lost to Brian Morrow, University of the South, 6-2, 6-4 in the first round. The tournament was hosted by Kalamazoo College.
- 1990 – Eric Schacht lost to Sal Mauro, U. of Rochester, 6-3, 6-2 in the first round. The tournament was hosted by Swarthmore College.
- 1976 – Gary Kolker lost to Eric Rossum, SUNY-Binghamton, 6-0, 6-2 in the first round. Bob Liebman lost to Joey Langston, Millsaps, 6-4, 7-5 in the first round. Kolker-Liebman lost to Rich Ash-Bob Wick, Cornell (Iowa), 6-7, 6-3, 6-3 in the first round of doubles. The tournament was hosted by Millsaps College
- 1968 – The entire Lawrence team was invited to the NCAA tournament in Fort Worth, Texas, but because of several personal conflicts (a wedding for one) the players voted not to go.
